Disqualified? Dead? Resigned? Removed?

About forty years ago a man died, leaving a will appointing four individuals as executors and trustees.

One failed to qualify; another resigned; the third was removed for incompetence; the fourth died about sixteen years ago.

One of the most important advantages of naming this Company as your trustee is the assurance of continuous performance of its function. Corporate in character, its life and efficiency are not limited to the uncertainties of individual life nor individual judgment and resources.

The duties and responsibilities of the trustee are discussed in our booklet "Safeguarding Your Family's Future," which we shall be pleased to send you on request.

OPINION AND COMMENT

Music on the Campus

Elsewhere in this issue is presented a story of the growth of interest and actual achievement in music on the campus which to those who have worked to make possible within the University a more varied culture is, or should be, altogether heartening. Within the brief period of two and a half years, the glee club, the orchestra, the band, to mention only the undergraduate organizations alone, have been brought to a point that their performances are highly creditable, and the men who have made places in them have, consciously or otherwise, come to appreciate some of the fine things in music.

Fortunately these benefits have not been confined solely to the organizations. Through monthly recitals in the chapel or churches, through the coming of special artists such as Sophie Braslau, David Bispham, the Letz Quartet, through choruses and operas participated in by soloists from the outside and by members of the student body and the local community, a more definite appreciation of music has been effected and the musical standards of the University, and therefore of the State, have been advanced.

It isn't for THE REVIEW to award or withhold praise for such accomplishments as these. But it cannot fail to say to Mr. Paul John Weaver and his associates in the department of music, that it notes these accomplishments and finds the keenest sort of pleasure in them.

Establish a Singing Tradition

While music is the subject before us there are two groups of the University's constituency to whom we are going to take the liberty of offering suggestions—the class of 1922 and the alumni.

Never, so far as we know, has the University had for any protracted period of time a robust singing tradition. There have been sporadic attempts to sing under the Davie Poplar and down on the street. But the tradition of campus singing has, unfortunately, never been formed or adhered to.

In this juncture we see no reason why the tradition should not be formed. If the lack of skilled directors has hitherto been the cause that hindered, it is now removed. If, again, the student body was not large enough to insure a sufficient number of good voices, that difficulty, too, has passed. And certainly no campus to the north of us whose traditions for group singing run back through the years, has a more open season than ours.

Suggested Letters

Brethren of the Alumni Association, it's too late for you to establish this tradition.

But that doesn't mean there is no contribution you can make to this musical program. Far from it.

In order that you may know just what your opportunity in this particular is, THE REVIEW takes the liberty of dictating, for your convenience, four letters, any one of which President Chase, backed by the whole campus, will be tickled to death to receive. Here they are:

1. My dear Mr. President: Several years ago while I sat in the Boston Symphony hall at a "popular" concert at which "popular" music was given (I use the word in its best musical sense) and found that I recognized only two of the twelve selections rendered, I decided that some day I would send the University of North Carolina a check for $25,000 for a pipe organ so that my successors in the student body might at least have the opportunity of hearing a good organ on the campus now and then. I understand Memorial Hall has been converted into a satisfactory auditorium, and I therefore hand you herewith a check for the amount and purpose indicated above.

2. Dear Dr. Chase: When I was a student at the Hill the old rattletrap of a piano in Gerrard Hall had shed most of the ivory from its keys. If you are still using it, I suggest that you place it in your historical museum—its age justifies that disposition of it—and draw on me for a first-class Steinway Grand Piano to replace it.

3. Dear Mr. President: I notice from the papers that the alumni of the A. and E. (A. and M.'s what they used to call 'emselves) are sending their band up to the Hill to give a free concert to the student body. That's pretty fine, I think; and for fear that we can't return the favor some day because of lack of band instruments (we didn't have any in my day, and from what I hear you haven't any too many now) I'm sending you a check for $500. You know, or Dr. Weaver knows, what to do with it.

4. My dear President Chase: Some time ago I read in THE REVIEW that the University Library did not contain a single volume of music by classic authors. Recently I saw a set of the Musical Library in eighty-five volumes issued by Oliver Ditson which, upon inquiry, I find your librarian could acquire for approximately $250. In order that a collection of this nature may be made accessible, I enclose a Liberty Bond that can be sold for that amount. If, in the meantime, you have secured the set, apply the money to the purchase of additional works in this field.

To Promote Campus Unity

One of the questions which alumni frequently ask members of the University community is whether or not the campus is thoroughly assimilating the largely increased number of new matriculates and handing down to them the University's best traditions.

It is a very thoughtful sort of question and in the very nature of the case cannot be answered with a direct yes or no. But it can be said that with the utilization of Memorial Hall as an auditorium, the matter is not nearly so serious as it was only twelve months ago.

Two steps have recently been taken by President Chase which tend to make reasonable assurance on this point doubly sure: namely, that hereafter he will hold the office hour of 10 to 11 every day open to students; and on Friday, his regular morning for speaking at chapel, he will from time to time talk particularly about the traditions and activities of the University.

Both of these methods of establishing personal and institutional points of contact must of necessity be highly beneficial and should lead to a finer type of campus unity.

Has Faculty Unity Suffered?

While proper assimilation of the student body has been of first importance, it may be equally important to inquire whether or not the rapidly growing faculty is being thoroughly assimilated, and if not, what means should be taken to bring this about.

Reference to the October issue of THE REVIEW will show that twenty-eight new instructors were added to the teaching staff of the University this year; or, to repeat an observation made by a trustee of the class of 1886, just three times plus one the number of members of the entire faculty when he was a student here! The whole instructional staff then numbered nine.

Added to the difficulty imposed by greatly enlarged numbers, is that of wider separation in residential districts. Formerly the faculty was domiciled in one or two sections at most. Now there are the Cobb Terrace development, Park Place, and University Heights, with individual residences being erected wherever land happens to be available, and, obviously, general visiting is placed under a correspondingly heavy handicap.

Furthermore, with the creation of administrative boards which in the main shape the policies of the various schools, a great deal of routine work of the University which formerly was considered in the general faculty meetings, is now administered by the individual schools concerned. Here again, frequency of faculty contact has decidedly suffered.

In fact, as THE REVIEW sees it, the day of frequent and easy association, with quick assimilation, is gone, and cannot be brought back unless some new method of procedure is devised.

We Suggest Several Remedies

THE REVIEW doesn't know what the best means is of insuring this desired unity. It may be an occasional informal smoker, or the creation of a faculty council sufficiently large to bring varied interests together for the discussion of University affairs; or, a different type of general faculty meeting; it may be (we should especially like to see it tried) the establishment of a faculty club at some spot on the campus easily accessible to all and sufficiently attractive to draw the whole group into a closer, warmer fellowship. Again it may not be any one of these things; but whatever it is, it should be discovered and utilized; for the unity of purpose and spirit which we have in mind can be our most priceless possession.

Questions Fill the Air

The burning of the University Inn and its subsequent removal have proved extremely interesting and diverting in and of themselves. Everybody was at the fire, and everybody has stood around as the campus forces under Superintendent Pickard have cleared the debris away.

But interest in the matter has gone much further than that. It has turned loose no end of speculation as to what disposition the committee on buildings and grounds and the trustee building committee will make of the site. And at the same time it has given rise to a multitude of questions of varying import relative to the whole program of campus development the most immediate of which are: Is the Inn to be replaced by an attractive, imposing University building? What building scheme will make the section of the campus between Franklin street and Cameron avenue more open without the sacrifice of buildings? What are the plans for the whole development, whether north or south, east or west, of the South building?

We Do Not Expect a Fee

THE REVIEW has never received a handsome fee for suggestions concerning the artistic development of lawns or parks. It probably never will. Nevertheless, inasmuch as this seems to be an open season for comment its opinion concerning the development of this particular section of the campus may just as well be expressed as some of the others it has heard. Accordingly, it follows:

The Inn site should by all means be utilized, and the building which is placed on it should be one of the most imposing in the campus group.

It should be placed in proper relation to the street, the Alumni building, and Old East, as it is absolutely essential, artistically, to the completion of the east side of the main quadrangle of the campus. There are a number of similes we could employ to emphasize the effect which the omission of such a building would produce in the appearance of the campus—broken frames, missing teeth, etc.—but we do not believe it necessary to add them to convey our meaning. We reserve them for future use if the contrary opinion reaches the point of seeming to prevail!

How to See the Campus

We are heartily in sympathy with those who wish to make it easy for the visitor to see something of the campus as he rides along Franklin street. That should certainly be done. But it should be done not by leaving the Inn site vacant, but by cutting down underbrush, removing unsightly offices, eliminating parts of the rock wall inside the campus and paralleling Franklin street from the Episcopal Church to the D. K. E. house, and opening walkways and vistas from the street into the heart of the campus.

This done, the following would be the sequence of buildings and open views into the campus from east to west: (1) The President's House; (2) the Raleigh road; (3) the "Alexander" yard; (4) the Episcopal Church; (5) the Barbee meadow and orchard with views leading south from the rock wall and along the border of the Arboretum to Davie Hall; (6) a perfect quadrangle with the Barbee residence and Chemistry Hall comprising the east frame, New East the end piece, and Old East, Alumni, and the new building on the site of the Inn, the west frame; (7) the main axis of the campus with the well and the South building in the distance; and (8) finally, the new dormitories and new Methodist Church with the A. S. Barbee office and the S. M. Barbee residence cleared away to Foister's store on the west.

In this way the dominating buildings on the street would catch the eye, and the walks and the sweep of green and lines of buildings beyond would hold and delight it.

All of Us Are Interested

But this opinion, given, seemingly, with quite a good deal of positiveness, will not dispose of the particular matter to which it relates. That would be taking it far too seriously, as it merely summarizes our first attempt at campus planning. Possibly it does one thing more. Now that the program for the first two years is definitely under way, it leads us to voice the hope of the campus that from time to time the committees concerned will find opportunity to say a word in answer to the hundreds of questions such as these that are on the lips of everyone. What is the plan for the South building? Will the library remain where it is? If so, can it be properly enlarged? Is there any advantage in housing the administration in a central building? Will there be a faculty club? If so, where? Where is the railroad station to be located? When is Person Hall to come down? And the Y? Is the Stadium to be enlarged? Is there a blue print or black and white sketch available for consultation?

Again we say, the campus and alumni are tremendously interested in all of these matters, and while these questions cannot and should not be answered with finality now, frequent statements concerning them will be greatly appreciated.

LATER: Since the foregoing paragraphs have been written the consulting architect has visited the campus and it is reported that he agrees with us as to the Inn site! At the January meeting of the faculty the matter of a faculty club was also discussed, with the appointment of a committee to investigate and report.—EDITORS.

Our "Chest" is Justifiable

Since the adjournment of the legislature in 1921 University alumni and North Carolinians generally have become quite "chesty" over the building program of the University and the tying together of the widely separated ends of the State with a sure-enough system of roads. And rightly so.

But some of our sister Southern States have been waking up, too; Virginia alumni and their friends added something over $1,500,000 to the endowment fund of the University of Virginia during 1921. Beginning October 11, or thereabouts, Georgia alumni put over in a thirty-day drive a $1,000,000 endowment campaign. Alabama has also been doing spectacular stunts recently.

And now, through her constitutional convention (we need one in North Carolina in order that the State may be provided with garments which will match her present size and growth, instead of the swaddling clothes in which she is at present wrapped) and legislature, Louisiana is doing something that is really eye-filling.

But Here's Something To Put in Our Pipes and Smoke

Without further comment to distract you, we turn you loose on the following excerpts from the Louisiana constitution. Don't skip it because the type is small—or because it may contain an idea!

"Article XII, Section 17. There shall be appropriated exclusively to the maintenance and support of the Louisiana State University and Mechanical College all revenues derived and to be derived from the summary fund, the agricultural and mechanical college fund, and other funds or lands donated or to be donated by the United States to the State of Louisiana for the use of a seminary of learning or of a college for the benefit of agricultural and mechanical arts. For its endowment and support there shall be levied annually, beginning on January 1, 1925, a tax of one half of one mill on the dollar of the assessed valuation of all the taxable property in the State; but if the proceeds of this tax exceed one million dollars ($1,000,000.00) in any one year, the excess shall be transferred to the general fund; provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed as prohibiting the Legislature from making such additional appropriations as may be necessary.

"After July 1, 1922, and until January 1, 1925, the State severance or license tax on natural resources up to five million ($5,000,000.00) dollars shall be appropriated to the said Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College for its maintenance, support, and improvement, and for the construction of additional buildings and equipment; provided, that there shall be first reserved and appropriated annually out of the proceeds of said State severance tax or license not exceeding two hundred and fifty thousand ($250,000.00) dollars for the supervision and collection of the tax or license and the administration of conservation laws."

In addition to the above Constitutional provisions, the Legislature in 1920 appropriated the residue of the severance tax up to July 1, 1922, to the University "for the further development and maintenance of the agricultural department," besides doubling the annual appropriations for support. This "Residue" will amount to about $2,000,000.00. Thus the University should receive from the severance tax about $7,000,000.00 up to January 1, 1925, after which date the severance tax will be turned into the general fund and the University will be supported by the half mill tax, which will produce $1,000,000.00 a year.

Mr. Alumni Secretary, please page the president of the University, the faculty and alumni committees on commencement, and all your fellow alumni who are now (or should be) setting down the dates June 11-14 to be reserved against all contingencies so as to insure the presence of said alumni here on this topsy-turvy, running-over-with-building-operations campus when the orators of the class of 1922 are telling their elders how to run the show.

For we have picked up out of the woolly west (and the staid east also) some ideas which are after all nothing more than ideas, and should receive consideration as such.

Week-End Commencements?

The first blows fresh from Northwestern University Alumnus under the above caption minus the question mark:

What about a week-end commencement? Or at least a week-end Alumni Day?

The Universities of the Big Ten and others are studying this now with a great deal of interest.

Michigan, for the first time, will go next June to a schedule that places Alumni Day on Saturday, Baccalaureate Sunday and Commencement Monday. Ohio State has had such a schedule for some time, commencement coming on Tuesday. Chicago uses a compromise in that it places Alumni days on Friday and Saturday, and to a large degree sends the Alumni home while the commencement events string along to the following Thursday. Cornell does the same. Illinois commencement is gradually fading out in favor of Home-Coming Day. Wisconsin Alumni want the week-end. Minnesota is studying the question.

The principal arguments against the week-end commencement seem to be the feasibility of getting in enough weeks of work and allowing sufficient time for examination. Tradition is probably a strong factor in the retention of the old system. The alumni have only recently been considered. Commencement has been a thing for the faculty and graduating class.

In favor of the week-end commencement one writer says: "All the logic of modern business efficiency, reasonableness and convenience for the returning graduates is in favor of the week-end plan." A class president writing in the Columbia Alumni News, says: "A young alumnus cannot afford to take time other than a week-end away from his business, and if he stays away three times, the stay-away habit is formed." He stated further: "What would the suggested change mean to all concerned? To the alumni it would mean that everybody could attend the events of interest to him, to the undergraduate it would mean added enthusiasm caused by the increased attendance, to the University it would mean constantly increasing support from a larger body of alumni.

Ohio State Alumni Monthly says: "Commencement is one thing. Alumni Day is another. The greater of these is Alumni Day."

A request for this kind of week-end program is now before our University Council. It has the support of the Northwestern University Alumni Association and the Chicago Club of Northwestern University Men.

Why Not Use the Grass and Trees and Running Brooks?

The second comes from Harvard and the University of Virginia. Last June we happened around when Harvard was in the thick of Alumni Day proceedings. We didn't hear President Lowell's address to the alumni, but we saw the speakers' stand and the seats all out in the open and framed in by three sides of a beautiful, ivy-bedecked quadrangle.

And at 6 o'clock out on the green under the spreading maples and elms, we joined a thousand other guests at a spread which, while it lacked all the formality (and speech-making) of the affairs in Swain Hall, made us happy that we were alive.

We have just laid down a copy of the Virginia Alumni Bulletin which contains two excellent full-page cuts, the first showing the Amphitheater (an exquisite bit of ancient Greece set down in the hills of "Old Virginia") itself; and the second the Amphitheater in use for the graduating exercises on commencement day last June.

We haven't a thing to say in advocacy of the application of these ideas (or any others they may suggest) to our annual ceremonial. But Mr. Alumnus, have you ever stopped to think, after you have watched the seniors smoke the pipe of peace out under the Old Davie Poplar, and seen the lengthening shadows streak the sweep of green to north and south, what it might mean to you to slip into the place vacated by the seniors, or walk over to a long table close by loaded with spring chicken, potato salad, sliced tomatoes, crisp lettuce, etc., with creams and ices and coffee, and your own special brand of smokes, and then, perchance, catch the strain of the orchestra or the silver note of a woodthrush's goodnight song?

Of course, the fellow who reached the table just before you might get the piece of chicken which tickles your palate most; or, it might rain! But wouldn't you like to take the chance once?

Begin Commencement Planning Now

One word more about commencement. The event is just four months off. This means that all plans for reunions and the special features which they involve, should be gotten underway at once. In recent years Alumni Day has steadily forged to the front as the big day of commencement, and this year is to be the banner year. For, as we said last month, this is an alumni year.

New Bottles for New Wine

If it is permissible to mention wet subjects in a supposedly parched land, it may not be amiss to raise a question as to the age of some of the bottles into which the new wine of the campus is flowing. Of course it isn't comfortable to have an official inspector nosing around, and sometimes we doubt whether such a body ever uncovers anything that is particularly valuable. On the contrary, we believe that the best results are obtained when various members of different interested groups get together and carry on a joint, unofficial investigation.

We haven't anything particular in mind, but mightn't it be worthwhile for every student organization, every committee entrusted with the doing of some special thing, every department and school, every administrative officer or office, to see whether the gear is set to do the new, larger work of the University in a thorough-going complete way?

For example let us look at the long line of students waiting by the hours, during the opening days, to pay their matriculation fees. The one long line might be divided into several shorter lines.

A Service to High School Seniors

One of the most interesting of the many memoranda turned into President Chase's office during the year was that by Mr. Dan Grant, former editor of the Tar Heel and member of the class of 1921. Summarized briefly, it made the point that the most opportune time for interesting high school seniors in attending college was in the spring, prior to graduating, and that definite, organized effort should be made, not so much to influence the prospective graduates to go to some particular college, but rather, to go to college. In a number of towns visited by Mr. Grant last summer he found graduating classes which, seemingly, had never considered seriously the matter of college training. For them, the completion of the high school course was the end.

In the larger towns in which Y, Rotary, and Kiwanis organizations are found, the subject of school and college attendance receives an increasing amount of consideration. But in the smaller communities unfortunately this frequently is not the case, and in this very fact we believe there exists an opportunity for real service on the part of Carolina alumni. Whether the graduates come here or not, the value of securing additional training somewhere ought by all means to be made clear, and we know of no group of citizens better qualified to do this than Carolina alumni. Mr. Grant is now out in the State at work on this program. Alumni assistance will be of value to him.

Our Lively Contemporary Scores

"Knowing North Carolina" (not "Seeing North Carolina," at once the pleasant diversion of Major Bruce Craven and the delight of his readers in the Greensboro Daily News) has been the principal objective of the University News Letter since its founding back in 1914. In season and out, it has minutely studied the varied phases of North Carolina life, and through its five weekly columns has given, in exceedingly readable, thought-provoking form, the results of its studies.

Now, after seven years, it takes on a new group of co-workers. At its meeting last summer, the North Carolina Press Association formally resolved to promote this particular thing, enabling North Carolinians to know their home State and The News Letter becomes the medium through which the association's program will be carried out. Articles will first appear in the News Letter and will thereafter be copied and commented upon by the press as a whole.

We have frequently had occasion to felicitate our campus contemporary on the fine purposes to which it lends itself. In this instance we make one of our most profound bows.

What a Hotel Would Do

The following note from School and Society for January 7 shows how the hotels of Madison, Wisconsin, help extend the influence of the state university and at the same time earn dividends on good hard American dollars:

The University of Wisconsin was host on December 28, 29, and 30, to four societies: American Association of Teachers of Journalism, American Association of College News Bureaus, Association of American Schools and Departments of Journalism, and Central Division of the National Association of Teachers of Advertising.

With proper hotel facilities, the University could bring a convention a week for thirty weeks to Chapel Hill, and dividends to the men who made the facilities possible.

A Doubly-Appreciated Gift

The library of the University received early in January a volume which the University appreciates on two distinct counts, first because of its worth as an unusually significant acquisition, and second because the library was recognized as one of the seventy in the country in which it was desired that copies should be placed for preservation and use.

The gift in question, made through Luigi Carnovale, of Chicago, in behalf of the Italians residing in the United States, in commemoration of the six-hundredth anniversary of the death of Dante, is a complete photostatic reproduction of the manuscript (Codice Trivulziano) of the "Divina Commedia" of Dante transcribed by Ser Francesco di Ser Nardo da Barberino of Florence, in 1337, thirteen years after the death of Dante. Through a special process of color photography, not only every detail of the original manuscript, but the illuminations of the text, are accurately reproduced, and with its handsome brown leather binding, the volume becomes one of the library's choicest possessions.

The Railroad Comes to Town

As will be seen by reference to the picture on another page the Chapel Hill "Limited" has made the distance from Carboro to a point immediately back of the South building on the schedule, May 1 to January 12, which, judged by the rate at which the "Limited" usually runs, is pretty fast time.

Special consideration should be given the picture, as it not only shows the engine and first car of freight delivered to the new building, but also the new Steele dormitory, a picture which has not previously appeared in The Review. In this picture there is final convincing evidence that the railroad is here and that coal can be pitched from a coal car directly into the coal bins under the gymnasium, or that a string of sleepers for the Carolina-Virginia classic in 1923, can be switched off within 100 yards of the entrance of Emerson Field.

The Journal of the Geological Society of Tokyo for September 20, 1921, contains an account of Prof. Collier Cobb's investigations in the Orient, and also reviews a number of his publications that have proved interesting and useful to the Japanese. The article mentions first his little book on Common Rocks and Rock Minerals, which was prepared for the use of his own students in the University of North Carolina. Early English Survivals on Hatteras Islands has its parallel in the dune strip bordering the Japan Sea, as seen in the Niigata dialect. The Forests of North Carolina has proven of great interest in a country where a tree is almost an object of adoration. Work done by Mr. Cobb in the Disual Swamp many years ago and mentioned in Shaler's paper is reviewed in some detail; but more space is given to The Landes and Dunes of Gascony than to any other paper by Professor Cobb, the entire account occupying nearly four columns of the journal. This appreciative review of the work of the visiting professor is from the pen of Professor B. Koto, head of the department of geology of the Imperial University of Tokyo.

A new use for the stadium at the University of Iowa was found early in the fall when one section of it was used as an auditorium. Convocation, with 1,000 students and the entire faculty present, was held in it, the rostrum for the speakers and band being immediately below and in front of the concrete stand.

ALUMNI STAGE HOLIDAY BANQUETS

Enthusiastic holiday banquets were held by alumni in Asheville, Gastonia, Goldsboro, Lexington, Reidsville, Rockingham and Tarboro. THE REVIEW records herewith brief accounts of these banquets together with accounts of banquets which were held last University day at Dunn, Pittsboro, Roanoke Rapids, Rocky Mount and Dallas, Texas.

Asheville

One hundred and fifty alumni, students and prospective students of the University staged at the Battery Park Hotel, Asheville, on December 26 the largest and most enthusiastic banquet in the history of the Buncombe County Alumni Association. Carl B. Hyatt acted as toastmaster and speeches were made by Haywood Parker, Julius Martin, Jr., J. Y. Jordan, Jr., and G. Spears Reynolds. Grady Reagan and Andy Smith enlivened the meeting with snatches of song. George Stephens sprung the surprise of the evening, this feature consisting of a full reel of the 1919 football game with Virginia, from which North Carolina emerged victorious. The banquet was a most successful occasion and resulted in the strengthening of Carolina interests not only in Asheville but through the entire western section. R. R. Williams served as president through the past year. New officers were elected: T. S. Rollins, '94, president; C. K. Hughes, '17, vice-president; D. M. Hodges, Jr., '19, secretary; and J. Y. Jordan, Jr., '19, treasurer.

Dallas

The Dallas Alumni Association was organized at a luncheon held in Dallas, Texas, on October 12. Those attending were: Chas. C. Cobb, Jno. M. Avery, Cameron B. Buxton, R. F. Williams, Dr. R. C. Spence and F. L. Eulless. Chas. C. Cobb, '80, was elected president, and F. L. Eulless, '13, was elected secretary. Secretary Eulless writes: "We had a very interesting meeting, indulging in many reminiscences, and we assure you that we will try to keep as much interest in our club as possible in behalf of our Alma Mater."

Dunn

The Harnett County Alumni Association was entertained at a delightful barbecue in Dunn on October 12 by Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Townsend. After the barbecue and other refreshments had been served on the spacious Townsend lawn, the alumni assembled around a camp fire and indulged in reminiscences of the campus and thoughts for the future of the University. J. R. Baggett, president of the association, acted as toastmaster, and those who spoke were: H. L. Godwin, Chas. Ross,

R. L. Godwin, N. A. Townsend, and G. K. Grantham. N. A. Townsend, '05, was elected president for the ensuing year, and M. T. Spears, '13, was elected treasurer. An executive committee was elected consisting of J. R. Baggett, H. L. Godwin, and F. T. Dupree.

Gastonia

One hundred and twenty-five alumni, students, and prospective students, with lady friends of all, gathered at the Baptist Annex, Gastonia, on the evening of December 28 for the eleventh annual joint banquet of the Gaston County Alumni Association and the Gaston County Club. The occasion proved a gala affair indeed, the largest and most successful in the history of the association. A. E. Woltz acted as toastmaster, and the principal address was made by President H. W. Chase, who in a most interesting talk outlined the University's program of development. Others who spoke included Solicitor Geo. W. Wilson, A. G. Mangum, John G. Carpenter, W. P. Grier, Miss Louisa Reid, Rev. J. P. Burke, H. L. Kiser and Ralph McLeod. The entire program was interspersed with music by the Community Orchestra. Officers were re-elected: A. E. Woltz, '01, president; Dr. T. C. Quickel, '98, vice-president; E. R. Rankin, '13, secretary; and Thos. J. Brawley, '20, treasurer.

Goldsboro

The Wayne County Alumni Association held its annual banquet in Goldsboro on January 2. Joe A. Parker, president of the association, presided as toastmaster, and the occasion was one of much profit and pleasure to all present. Lionel Weil, Kenneth Royall and W. B. Fort spoke for the graduates and Talbot Parker for the undergraduates. The chief speaker was Dr. L. R. Wilson, of the University faculty, who dwelt particularly on the development of the University in its physical property, its scholastic standards, and its sphere of usefulness. The association voted its hearty support to the Carolina Playmakers who were scheduled soon for a performance in Goldsboro, and appointed a committee to confer with the athletic authorities in reference to securing a Carolina baseball game for Goldsboro. Joe A. Parker, '09, was re-elected president of the association, and Kenneth Royall, '14, was re-elected secretary.

Lexington

The Davidson County Alumni Association held its annual banquet at the March Hotel in Lexington on December 30. Major Wade H. Phillips acted as toastmaster. Toasts were responded to by Capt. F. C. Robbins, of the famous class of '59; H. R. Totten, of the University faculty; J. R. McCrary, of the Lexington bar; and Clyde Hunt, of the junior class.

THE BURNING OF UNIVERSITY INN, AN ANCIENT LANDMARK

The occasion was a most happy one and was greatly enjoyed by all present. The following officers were elected: E. C. Byerly, '09, president; C. L. Snider, '16, vice-president; H. G. West, '19, secretary; and J. R. Raper, Jr., '21, treasurer.

Pittsboro

On the evening of October 12, the Chatham County Alumni Association held a smoker at Pittsboro for the purpose of re-organizing and discussing ways and means whereby the association might be of more service to the University.

The following members were present: Dr. J. M. Harper, C. A. Poole, D. L. Bell, W. P. Horton, A. H. London, W. R. Thompson and Wade Barber. Solicitor W. D. Siler, '00, was re-elected president and D. L. Bell, '15, was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

The association decided to establish a loan fund for the purpose of aiding worthy boys of Chatham County who desire to attend the University but are unable financially to pay their way.

Reidsville

The Rockingham County Alumni Association held its holiday banquet on December 30 in Reidsville. The gathering proved one of the most delightful occasions in the history of this live-wire organization. W. R. Dalton, president of the association, presided as toastmaster. The principal address was made by a visiting alumnus, E. D. Broadhurst, of the class of '99, of the Greensboro bar. Mr. Broadhurst spoke particularly of the sacrifices that had been made by others in order that men might pass through the gates of Carolina. Others who made talks included L. H. Hodges, secretary of the association, Major T. Smith, and Nathan Womack. U. Leland Stanford was elected as one of the vice-presidents of the association. Further plans were made for the Rockingham County Loan Fund, which has for its object the extending of aid to worthy boys and girls from the county in their efforts for an education.

Roanoke Rapids

The Roanoke Rapids Alumni Association was entertained most pleasantly at its annual meeting on October 10 by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Wyche. The alumni decided to establish at once four scholarships of the value of one hundred dollars each, the holders of the scholarships to be worthy boys from the community. Roanoke Rapids is a 100 per cent Carolina city. All the boys who graduated from the local high school in 1921 are now at the University and very nearly all who finished in 1920 are likewise at Carolina. Chas. A. Wyche, '01, is president of this association, and Rev. L. N. Taylor, '10, is secretary.

Rockingham

The Richmond County Alumni Association held its annual banquet in Rockingham on December 27. Present-day students from the county were guests of the alumni. The banquet was held at the Hotel Rockingham and was attended by seventy-five alumni and students. T. C. Leak, president of the association, was toastmaster. Frank P. Graham, of the University faculty, spoke of alumni participation in and their part in carrying through North Carolina's great building program. W. N. Everett, in speaking of the great program ahead of the University, gave high praise to Governor Cameron Morrison for his championship of bond issues and to Geo. A. Holderness for joining legislative forces with the building vision of President Graham in 1917, the first step in the big building enterprise. The following students spoke: C. Y. Coley, D. E. Scarborough, Claud Millham, A. L. Hogan, Le Grand Everett, Jr., H. S. Everett '20, and J. S. Terry, '18, medical students at Hopkins and Columbia, respectively, also made talks. Richmond County is a strong alumni center and never fails to hold an inspiring Carolina banquet during the Christmas holidays. W. N. Everett, '11, was elected president; B. F. Reynolds, '08, was elected vice-president; and I. S. London, '06, was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

Rocky Mount

The Rocky Mount Alumni Association held an enthusiastic banquet at the Woman's Club tea room in Rocky Mount on the evening of October 18. W. S. Wilkinson, Jr., president of the association, presided, and the principal address was made by A. H. Patterson, of the University faculty, who spoke in an interesting and instructive manner on the University's growth and problems. R. T. Fountain, '07, was elected president of the association; M. R. Robbins, '18, was elected vice-president; and Geo. L. Wimberly, Jr., '19, was elected secretary and treasurer.

Tarboro

The Edgecombe County Alumni Association held a splendid banquet at Tarboro on December 30, with an attendance of seventy-five. Students of the University and prospective students, with their fathers, joined with the alumni for the occasion. W. Stamps Howard presided as toastmaster and the principal address was made by Robert A. Fetzer, assistant director of athletics in the University, who made an interesting talk on the subject of "Carolina Athletics." Others who spoke included Geo. A. Holderness, of the board of trustees, Jno. W. Umstead, Jr., Dr. W. W. Green, and Don Gilliam.

Hiroshi Momiyama, A.M., 1917, has been elected a member of the Japanese Parliament. He was nominated by the Constitutionalist Party in 1917 and went home to make the campaign; but he failed of election as his party was in a hopeless minority. His election from the same district while the disarmament conference in session at Washington is a good omen.

THE NEW RAILROAD WITH CARRBORO IN THE DISTANCE

MUSIC IN THE UNIVERSITY

By E. S. LINDSEY, '20

From a glee club to a department of music; from temporary travelling organization, giving each year a few performances of popular music, to a permanent department of the University, which sends out a better glee club, supports a regular University orchestra, gives recitals of piano, organ, violin, and vocal music, supplies incidental music for plays, produces complete comic operas, and guarantees performances by great artists from the outside world—such is the development of music in the University.

Before the war Carolina sent out every year a glee club which gave ten to fifteen concerts, including one or two on the Hill and others in towns where Carolina alumni were strong, or where there was a woman's college. Each club contained a few real musicians and a great many jolly fellows out for a good time. As a result, the people of Raleigh, Greensboro and Winston-Salem enjoyed the men as much as the music. And the girls of St. Mary's, N. C. C. W., and Salem! The men worked not for the music but for the trips. The clubs advertised the University to some extent, but they did comparatively little for it musically. In return they received only moral support from the University.

Contemporary with these glee clubs was a series of brass bands, whose chief function was to add to the spirit of the cheering at the games. During each summer school there was a choral concert; and there were a few miscellaneous performances by outside musicians. Such was the musical bill of fare of the University.

During the latter part of the war the glee club came to grief, financially and otherwise, and died. After the war there seemed slight chance of reviving it. But a few earnest workers kept an orchestra going, gave successful concerts, in chapel and other places, and thus encouraged the faculty advocates of music to put through their long standing scheme to found a regular department of music.

Weaver Begins Musical Program

In the fall of 1919 Mr. Paul John Weaver, A.M., A.G.O., came to Carolina as director of the new department. He had all the qualifications, professional and personal, necessary to win success in the difficult task ahead of him. He took hold of affairs with vigor and gained results from the start. The glee club was reorganized, properly trained, and taken out in the fall and spring to give programs of real musical merit. This does not mean that the music was all high-brow stuff; but it was well performed. The orchestra was reorganized and trained so well that it was soon able to handle much of the standard orchestral concert music with something of the skill and charm of professional players. Two crowded houses testified to the popularity of the orchestra's two concerts. The orchestra also supplied appropriate music for the Carolina Playmakers' dramatic productions, and for other occasions, such as the inauguration of President Chase.

In the spring Mr. Weaver produced The Mikado, a comic opera by Gilbert and Sullivan, with nine soloists, a chorus of forty men and women, and the orchestra. This was a huge success musically, dramatically, and financially.

Sunday Afternoon Recitals Are Popular

In addition to these major activities Mr. Weaver organized monthly Sunday afternoon concerts of piano or vocal music. Large crowds came to these free events. He also taught regular courses in theory and appreciation of music, and traveled much throughout the State, under the Extension Division, giving lectures and recitals, leading community sings, and organizing choruses. Last, but by no means least, the University backed Mr. Weaver in bringing celebrated musical artists here for concerts. Sophie Braslau, David Bispham, and the Letz String Quartet have appeared up to date. Others are coming.

A VIEW OF THE CONSTRUCTION WORK FROM EMERSON STADIUM

Instructors in Voice and Violin Added

The next fall, 1920, Mr. Thomas Hoffmann Hamilton, baritone and vocal teacher, was added to the department's force. Mr. Hamilton took charge of the glee club, gave private voice lessons, and acted as general assistant to Mr. Weaver in the work of the department. The program for the year was largely the same as that of the first year, with the addition of a community chorus which gave an excellent rendering of Stainer's The Crucifixion. The opera performed this year was Gilbert and Sullivan's H. M. S. Pinafore.

Last fall the department was augmented by the addition of Mr. Carl Wiegand, an excellent violinist, who directs the orchestra and teaches violin pupils. With three leaders the department has flourished. The glee club went out in the fall with a program which was easily the best in many years. The orchestra plays as never before. At one performance by the Carolina Playmakers the plays were actually held up because the audience demanded the replaying of Rimski-Korsakoff's Song of India. Several recitals of piano, organ, violin, and vocal music have been given. On February 8th Planquette's opera, The Chimes of Normandy, will be presented under Mr. Weaver's direction, with a cast of 13 principals, chorus of 40, and orchestra of 15. The remainder of the spring program is as follows:

Program for Spring of 1922

The Letz Quartet, February 13.

Glee Club trip in the eastern part of the State, probably February 27-March 4. Week-end trips to Greensboro, Durham and Raleigh.

Five Sunday afternoon concerts, on the first Sunday of each month, including organ recital by Mr. Twaddell, organist of the First Presbyterian Church, Durham; student recital; piano and voice recital by

Concert by the A. and E. band. Free, by courtesy of the Raleigh A. and E. alumni.

In connection with the Carolina Playmakers, orchestral music, and folk-songs in costume, à la Fuller Sisters.

Extension work by Mr. Weaver, including seven organ recitals, community sings, three lectures.

An original musical comedy, written on the campus, May 10th and 11th, with a cast entirely of men. This will be on the order of the famous Princeton Triangle Club, which has just taken a 3,000 mile trip with its present show. A permanent organization is being formed for the production of such a show annually, with prizes for the best book and best music each year.

THE FIRST DORMITORY WELL ALONG TOWARDS COMPLETION

TRUSTEES HOLD MID-WINTER MEETING

"What the State has done since a year ago has proven a challenge to the entire South, and State after State will follow in North Carolina's leadership in the splendid interest of future citizenship," President H. W. Chase declared to the semi-annual meeting of the board of trustees of the University of North Carolina in session in Raleigh on January 24.

More than 1,600 students, representing 97 of the 100 counties in the State, have enrolled at the University during the present term, and enlarged facilities now under construction under the provision made by the General Assembly during the year will make possible the enrollment of 500 more students next year, he said, in making his annual report, giving in detail the progress of the work at the University during the past year.

Yesterday's session of the board of trustees was the most generally attended in recent years. Members were here from four western mountain counties and from the coast. Routine business and the reading of reports from the president and various committees occupied the time of the meeting for the most part. Col. J. Bryan Grimes, chairman of the building committee, gave a detailed report of construction work during the year.

Out of the meeting will probably grow a new and adequate hotel building at the University. Impetus was given the need when John Sprunt Hill, a trustee and leading business man of Durham, declared that he would give the Graves' property, recently acquired by him, and $10,000 toward the construction of the building. A committee, composed of Josephus Daniels, chairman; George Stephens, C. G. Wright and Lindsay Warren was named to develop the matter.

Work on the Community Center building, to be erected as a memorial to Edward Kidder Graham, president of the University until his death in 1918, will likely get under way during the coming spring. President Chase reported that $122,000 of the $150,000 desired had been raised by alumni of the University. The building committee was asked to take the matter in hand, and upon the instruction of the executive committee proceed with the construction.

Memorial resolutions for the late Governor T. W. Bickett were directed to be prepared, and Josephus Daniels, Walter Murphy and Z. V. Walsler, made members of the committee to draw up the memorial. Members of the executive committee whose terms expire this year, Dr. R. H. Lewis, Dr. Chas. Lee Smith, Chas. Whedbee, Judge James S. Manning and Judge Francis D. Winston were re-elected to succeed themselves.

In the absence of Governor Morrison, chairman of the board, George A. Holderness, of Tarboro, presided at the meeting yesterday.

The following members were present: Dr. R. H. Lewis, Raleigh; John Sprunt Hill, Durham; F. J. Coxe, Wadesboro; Walter Murphy, Salisbury; J. A. Hendricks, Marshall; J. Bryan Grimes, Raleigh; A. H. Graham, Hillsboro; R. L. Smith, Albemarle; C. F. Harvey, Kinston; Z. V. Walsler, Lexington; Leslie Weil, Goldsboro; Dr. Charles Lee Smith, Raleigh; F. P. Hobgood, Oxford; C. G. Wright, Greensboro; J. S. Cunningham, Durham; W. E. Breese, Brevard; John Hinsdale, Raleigh; J. H. Manning, Kinston; Lindsay Warren, Washington; B. K. Lassiter, Oxford; Haywood Parker, Asheville; W. N. Everett, Rockingham; James L. Hyatt, Burnsville; George A. Holderness, Tarboro; Graham Woodard, Wilson; Josephus Daniels, Raleigh; George Green, Weldon; Wiley M. Person, Louisburg; R. O. Everett, Durham; J. E. Long, Durham; J. C. Kittrell, Henderson; P. J. Long, Jackson; Perrin Busbee, Raleigh; M. L. John, Lenoir; H. M. London, President Chase, and C. T. Woolen.—News and Observer, January 25, 1922.

Two publications just issued by the Extension Division in the Bulletin series are the Rural Playground, by Harold D. Meyer, supervisor of field work for the School of Public Welfare, and the League of Nations, by E. R. Rankin, secretary of the High School Debating Union.

THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY ENTERS THE CAMPUS

AROUND THE CAMPUS AND TOWN

The winter quarter opened with 1,656 students registered. Of these 45 are new and three are co-eds.

Samuel Gompers, long time president of the American Federation of Labor, has been invited to speak before the student body and the School of Commerce during the spring. A reply to the invitation has not yet been received.

Professor F. H. Koch, while in New York during the holidays, was invited to bring the Carolina Playmakers to the metropolis.

According to the Tar Heel, the December number of the Tar Baby (which appeared on the campus in January) was "sad—frankly, very sad."

The work of clearing away the University Inn, which was burned on November 30th, has been completed and there is much speculation on the campus as to whether or not a new building will be placed on the site.

The "jungle" lying between the Inn and the Alumni building and paralleling the rock well running east towards the Episcopal Church, has been cleared and a permanent walk, extending in a perfectly straight line from west of the library to the former residence of President Graham has been opened through it.

Over fifty high schools have entered the high school basketball contest conducted by the Extension Division. Over 250 schools have also entered the spring debating contest.

The Carolina Playmakers, under the direction of Professor F. H. Koch, made their second State tour January 16-24, playing before enthusiastic audiences in Henderson, Roanoke Rapids, Scotland Neck, Tarboro, Goldsboro, Wilmington, Red Springs, and Rockingham. The plays presented were The Miser, In Dixon's Kitchen, and Trista.

Robert W. Madry, '18, formerly in charge of the news service of the University and associate editor of THE REVIEW, spent the week-end, January 11-14, on the Hill. While here he spoke before the class in Journalism. Since leaving the University in 1919, Mr. Madry was graduated from the School of Journalism of Columbia University and has spent eighteen or twenty months on the news staff of the New York Herald in Paris.

Upon the completion of the new Law School building the present Law building is to be converted into a playhouse for the Carolina Playmakers.

The stairways leading into Memorial Hall have recently been replaced with new material and banisters and railing at each end with the result that the appearance of the front has been greatly improved. Stairways leading to windows, one on the east and one on the west side of the building, have also been added in order to lessen the time required for the student to enter and leave the building at chapel period.

As a result of recent negotiations the congregation of the local Methodist Church has acquired the office of the late A. S. Barbee. When the plans for the new church building have been perfected, the office will be removed and the ground on which it stands will be merged into the church lawn.

The State budget committee reviewed the finances of the State the last week in December and announced that sufficient revenue was in sight to insure State institutions of the full amount of the appropriations voted last March. The announcement was received with genuine pleasure by the campus.

HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER FRANK PAGE

Come on, old eventually, we've got a 500-word, free-hand sketch of Frank Page, chairman of the North Carolina Highway Commission, to do for Doc. Wilson. If it were anybody else except these two, we wouldn't do it—but Doc. is about the insistingest fellow there is, and it's time somebody tried to approximate the truth about Mr. Frank, his job and the way he is measuring up to it.

But we're glad there are only 500 words to do—in an extended article we might tend toward detail and the victim of this can and probably would lick us, if there were any attempt at sugar-coating him.

No danger of that, however: it would take too danged much sugar. Six feet and some-odd inches of man, he-man, crammed full of brains and guts—that's Frank Page. None of theseyere pubblind optimists always prating of service, hoping the people will understand his motives, trusting to the ravens to feed him. He knows where he is going every minute of the day, and when daylight wanes and he hasn't covered sufficient distance to suit him he travels at night.

Bob Page, former congressman and the choice of some thirty thousand of us for Governor, says, according to Tom Bost, that he knows more about roads than his brother, Frank. Having paid our respects more than once to Mr. Bob at the polls, we can without heat enter a positive denial. Frank Page is the one man in the State of North Carolina who carries a road map of the State in his head and sees the projected State system as a unified whole, without respect to whose land is enhanced in value by having a road pnt through it or whose political pledges are delayed in transit.

Henry Page, State food administrator and yet another brother of the five who with Cary, Wake County, as Genesis, have made the Page name a synonym for getting somewhere without refusing a lift to a friend or a fight to an opponent while way-faring, says that Frank is hard-headed. Well, none would suspect his cranium of being soft. Anybody can get at him and tell him anything; it takes something more than telling to convince him.

Convinced, he is just as ready to do the thing your way as his own. But don't go bothering him unless you know what you want. He knows no more than he cares about politics; he'll probably surprise you by telling you things about the roads of your own section that you never suspected but which can be verified for you while you wait.

Thomas Walter Bickett, God rest him for the purposeful friend of us ordinary folk that he was, picked Frank Page for chairman of the highway commission because the governor was committed to a policy of roads to serve the whole people and not merely to encourage tourist travel. He was attracted to him by the trail Mr. Page and Leonard Tufts had left in the Sandhills and the construction work done by Lieutenant Page of the A. E. F. in France.

 STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER

It might be said here that it could have been Major Page just as well, if the subject of discussion had been willing to go to Alaska to get out spruce for the aircraft division.

Governor Bickett's belief in his selection for the highway commission was shared by the State Good Roads Association and the Legislature when it came time to revise road legislation, authorize the big bond issue and reconstruct the commission itself. Every bill offered, every tentative draft of a bill formulated provided for the retention of Frank Page as chairman, and Governor Morrison, whatever his feelings at the outset were for the brother of Bob who ran and Henry, who spoke against him, has accepted his predecessor's appointee as the biggest single factor in the constructive program by force of which the present State administration hopes to make its impress on history.

There he is, roughly done, for his fellow alumni,

Direct, plain of speech sometimes to the point of bluntness, cheerfully hopeful of results, but always storing his powder out of the wet. You'll like him when you come in contact with him if you care for a painstaking workman who keeps his eye on the line he is hewing to and lets the other fellow attend to the chips.

COMMANDER UNITED CONFEDERATE VETERANS

CAPTAIN LOWE LEAVES COLLEGE

After four and a half years in the University, Robbins Lowe, '21, accepted in January a position with the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company and is now in their Baltimore office. If Lowe plays the commercial game as brilliantly and consistently as he performed on gridiron and diamond, the rival tobacco companies may expect touchdowns and home runs at any time, especially in the pinches. Camels are apt to go across the goal lines, over the circumscribing fences, over international boundaries, and across seas and oceans into all the markets of the world.

When it was announced that Lowe had left an affectionate sigh of universal regret went up from the campus. He was the hero of this college generation, unassuming, clean cut, effective, and yet off hand in his personality, whether he was leading a University german, preparing a paper in his favorite field of English literature, or breaking up ball games in the critical innings by home runs with three on the bases or making decisive touchdowns against Virginia while two stars looked on in admiration and suspense. Last spring Lowe won four baseball games with home runs at decisive moments. His dashes in 1919 and in 1921 carried the ball across the Virginia goal line to victories, either of which list him high in the line of North Carolina immortals and both crown him non-pareil.

The college generations that come will remember him for these victories. The college generation that knows him now will remember him warmly as student, citizen, athlete, and man, who played the game in all things.

NAUGHTY-TWO ELECTS OFFICERS

EDITOR, THE REVIEW:

SIR: The class of 1902 has just held an election of officers by mail, with the result that Brent S. Drane, of Charlotte, has been elected president and Louis Graves, of Chapel Hill, secretary. Other nominees who received substantial votes were R. R. Williams, of Asheville; Guy Roberts, of Madison; Joseph B. Cheshire, Jr., of Raleigh; J. Ed Swain, of Asheville, and Henry M. Robins, of Asheboro.

A good deal of interest was manifested in the election and approaching reunion. I have no doubt that when commencement comes the class of 1902 will maintain its custom of making the reunion a success, both in attendance and in its expression of alumni loyalty to the University.

Yours sincerely,

I. F. LEWIS, '02,
Retiring Secretary.

The dean at Syracuse is president of his college and has all the duties pertaining to the president's office. Dr. Raper was in the faculty at Carolina from 1901 until 1920, and is well remembered by alumni of that period.

—Upon the occasion of his eighty-second birthday on February 26, many friends extended their good wishes to Major W. A. Graham, of Raleigh, Commissioner of Agriculture. Besides Major Graham only four members of the class of 1860 survive: Major E. J. Hale, of Fayetteville; Captain John H. Thorpe, of Rocky Mount; Captain T. W. Davis, of Raleigh; and R. A. Bullock, of Franklinton.

—It is an interesting coincidence that Colonel Lewis L. Pilcher, of Brooklyn, N. Y., commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, and General Julian S. Carr, of Durham, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, were both members during college days in the early sixties of the Zeta Psi fraternity, Colonel Pilcher at Michigan, and General Carr at Carolina.

Atlanta chamber, was made to Dr. Hoke on account of his great work as an orthopaedic surgeon.

"Dr. 'Mike' Hoke is one of the most distinguished of North Carolina's sons. His remarkable success in the field of orthopaedic surgery has given him a nation-wide reputation. Dr. Hoke is a son of the late Gen. Robert F. Hoke, of Raleigh, and a brother of Mrs. Alex Webb, of this city. General Hoke was one of the greatest of the Confederate leaders. It is said that General Lee had chosen him to succeed in command of the Confederate forces should he be killed.

"Dr. Hoke was captain of the famous football team of 1892 at the University of North Carolina. Following the game in Atlanta when the Tar Heels licked the University of Virginia 26 to 0, a Confederate veteran stopped Captain Hoke as he left the field, muddy and bloody from the fray.

"'What's your name?' asked the veteran.

"'Hoke,' replied the victorious captain.

"'Any kin to General Hoke?'

"'Yes, sir; his son.'

"'Well, you go back and tell your pa that I've seen the finest fighting today that I've seen since Chancellorsville,' said the veteran."

CAROLINA MEN WELCOME

Why have 57,000 College Men enrolled in the Alexander Hamilton Institute?

THE president of the largest institution of its kind in America—a man still in his forties—was commenting on his own experience in business.

“When I graduated from college I supposed I was equipped with the training necessary to business success,” he said.

“As a matter of fact I had nothing more than a bare foundation. I discovered that fact even in my first job, and for weeks I spent my evenings in a night school trying to master the elements of cost finding and accountancy.

“Later, as I made my way up toward executive positions I found I needed to know the fundamentals of sales and merchandising, of advertising and factory management, of office organization and corporation finance.

“These I picked up from books as best I could. Probably my college training made it easier for me to acquire them; but the college training alone certainly was not an adequate preparation for business in my case. I doubt if it is for any man.”

More than 155,000 men in eleven years

The Alexander Hamilton Institute was not founded early enough to be of service to this man, but it grew out of an appreciation of the needs of men of just this type.

In the eleven years of its existence the Institute has enrolled more than 155,000 men who are today making more rapid progress in business as a result of its training.

Of these 155,000 no less than 57,000 are graduates of colleges and universities.

This is the Institute's mark of distinction—that its appeal is to the unusual man. It has only one course, embracing the fundamentals underlying all business, and its training fits a man for the sort of executive positions where demand always outruns supply.

The splendid privilege of saving wasted years

One of the tragedies of the business world is that so many college men spend so many of the best years of their lives in doing tasks which they know are below their real capacity.

It is the privilege of the Institute to save those wasted years—to give a man in the leisure moments of a few months the working knowledge of the various departments of modern business which would ordinarily take him years to acquire.

That the Institute's Modern Business Course and Service actually achieves this splendid result, that its training is practical and immediately applicable to the problems of every business, the records of 155,000 business men, in every kind of business, prove.

At least you will want the facts

Every College man in business is interested in business training. He is interested in it either as a factor in his own progress, or as a factor in the progress of the younger men associated with him, who are constantly turning to him for advice.

To put all the facts regarding the Modern Business Course and Service in convenient form the Alexander Hamilton Institute has prepared a 120-page book, entitled, “Forging Ahead in Business.” It tells concisely and specifically what the Course is and what it has done for other men. There is a copy of this book for every college man in business; send for your copy today.
